

2019/2020 MCC Events

You.

Understanding who you really are can change your life, your relationships and your community. Get the skills you need for the _____ you want - a job, new friendships, deeper family connections, romantic partnership and more. You fill in the blank. When your personal values drive your behavior, you have the power to build the _____ you want.

Participants will be able to:

- Identify personal values
- Describe how values driven behaviors work
- Utilize values driven behaviors to shift their behaviors around conflict and/or boundaries

September 20 and January 24 10a—12n

Consent

Consent has become a buzzword for those seeking to address sexual assault on campus and in the larger community. But what does it mean? How does it work? Why is everyone so confused about consent? Through a workshop approach, we will examine the concept of consent together through practical examples and skill development. Participants can expect to deepen their own knowledge of consent and walk away with strategies to better practice consent in their own lives.

Participants will be able to

- Describe two key conflicting messages of consent
- Define affirmative consent
- Identify personal practices to promote a culture of consent

December 6 and April 24 10a—12n

Leveraging power

Working hard isn't enough - we need to leverage power strategically to get what we want. Understanding personal, organizational and institutional power can help you to create systemic change in your neighborhood, school, or work environment. Participants will learn how community organizing strategies and tactics can be used in multiple settings to accomplish a wide range of objectives.

Participants will be able to

- Define community organizing, volunteerism and activism
- Identify ways in which power can be leveraged
- Describe three community organizing tools: 1 on 1 interviews; asset mapping and power mapping

October 11 and February 7 10a—12n

Why do they stay?

Many of us have felt helpless while someone - a student, client, loved one or neighbor - stayed in an abusive relationship. Stop spinning your wheels and start making a difference. In this workshop we'll learn the most effective strategies to support people being abused and hold perpetrators accountable.

Participants will be able to

- Identify indicators of domestic violence
- Define the key philosophy guiding effective interventions
- Describe an effective intervention to someone experiencing domestic violence

November 8 and March 27 10a—12n
